

A crazy shopping center stranded as a Cruise ship in the middle of Hong Kong

Contributed by Webmaster

More info...

The name Hong Kong is enough to give us shopping glitches and so is this Cruise ship. The cruise ship, Whampoa, stranded in a gigantic pool in the middle of Hong Kongs largest private housing state: Whampoa Garden, precisely lives up to the citys reputation. Its Love Boat/ Cruise ship with a fixed constant destination, squeezes in a huge shopping mall full of restaurants, shops and a hotel. When you look it up in Google maps, youre ought to think its a real cruising one. Good job Hong

The People's Music Person

In my experience, the folk music community is an unusually egalitarian oasis at the edges of the music industry. Sure, there are outstanding folk musicians who go on to become stars, but generally speaking, you don't hear much about folkies behaving like stars: throwing backstage tantrums when the food is too hot or cold, trashing their hotel rooms or brawling with paparazzi. Mostly they're just folks, and treat others that way. Likewise, the folk community is one in which the people who s

One working morning... i found it in my car... someone have 'breake in' my car and placed it on the passenger seat .. hmm.. this is sweet.. thks ya =* . My favorite song is the first song ' MIGRATE' ... makes me feel like to move my hips move my hips.. hehe... and now this song is my default ringtone for incoming calls... keke.. . 1 Migrate (feat. T-Pain) Bounce, bounce, bounce, bounce Keep it movin... Bounce Keep it movin... Bounce Keep it movin... Bounce Keep it movin... Bounce Once ag

Bollywood Over Federer, 15-0

Things havent been going too well for Roger Federer recently. Sure, his epic Wimbledon finals loss to Rafael Nadal was understandable. But this weeks defeat at the hands of Frenchman Gilles Simon at the Rogers Cup is harder to explain. Or is it? Bollywood might be behind Federers defeat this time around. When Federer arrived at the Toronto Hilton he probably expected to get his usual level of service. And by that hed be given The Federer Suite, named after himself. You might expect that
